Consent for PET/CT AMYLOID SCAN

Information Regarding PET / CT Scans and Amyloid:

You will undergo a Positron Emission Tomography / Computerized Tomography ("PET/CT") scan which uses a radio-labelled tracer (a radioactive compound), a radioactive diagnostic agent for Positron Emission Tomography (PET) imaging of the brain to estimate β -amyloid neuritic plaque density in adult patients with cognitive impairment who are being evaluated for Alzheimer's disease and other causes of cognitive decline.

A PET/CT scan is considered to be a very safe procedure with few associated risks. The most common reported adverse reaction was headache, occurring in 2% of patients, followed by musculoskeletal pain, blood pressure increased, fatigue, nausea, and injection site reaction, all occurring in <1% of patients.

The amount of radiation exposure which you will encounter during the PET / CT scan is equivalent to the amount you would receive from other conventional scans that have been used for decades in Canada. The additional radiation dose is approximately 11 millisieverts, which is similar to the radiation dose you would receive if undergoing a standard CT scan of the abdomen and pelvis.

THE EFFECTS OF EXPOSURE TO SUCH LOW LEVELS OF RADIATION IS EXPECTED TO BE MINIMAL, AS YOUR RISK LEVEL IS CALCULATED OVER YOUR ENTIRE LIFETIME.

Governing Law:

You agree that:

- (i) all aspects of the relationship between you and INITIO Medical Group Inc., Premier Diversified Holdings Inc., and their respective affiliates, subsidiaries and agents, and their respective employees, directors, officers and any physicians or other independent health care providers related to or in association with INITIO Medical Group Inc., Premier Diversified Holdings Inc. including without limitation any medical or health care and treatment provided to you; and

I have read the above details and give my informed consent below. I give my consent to undergo scan. I have had the chance to discuss with my healthcare provider(s) the risks and benefits for my particular condition as described above. I understand that I may withdraw this consent at any time.
